The Interstate Commerce Commission has announced that public hearings on the future of the railroad line along the Greenbrier River will be held on July 25, 1977, at Marlinton. The 92 mile Chesapeake and Ohio Railway branch line has been under abandonment application before the federal agency since early 1975.

The short announcement by the I. C. C. noted that the hearing would begin at 9:30 a. m., but said that the location of the meeting would be by the I. C. C. noted that the hearing would begin at 9:30 a. m., but said that the location of the meeting would be announced at a later time.

Meanwhile, the West Virginia Railroad Maintenance Authority (RMA), a state agency, also announced that a preliminary public meeting and information session would also be held in Marlinton. This meeting, which will begin at 8:00 p. m. on Thursday, June 23, will be held in the Marlinton Municipal Building at Marlinton.

“The purpose of the preliminary state meeting is to inform the general public, shippers, local government officials, and other interested parties,” said John Killoran, RMA Executive Director. “Our agency is charged by both federal and state laws with determining the best future course of the line. Our especial interest is assuring the best future need for the line while keeping the public costs to the lowest possible level,” he continued.

The RMA also announced that its planning coordinator, Fred Wenger

For the past year, the RMA has studied the history of rail service on the line, which runs from North Caldwell to Durbin. In addition, a national consulting firm assisting with the writing of the West Virginia state rail plan has completed an extensive study of the line and alternatives for its future use.

Based on 1975 traffic data and costs, the RMA said that only 148 cars of freight were delivered or loaded on the branch line. When costs were figured on the public subsidy of continued service on the rail-line and alternatives for its future use.

Based on 1975 traffic data and costs, the RMA said that only 148 cars of freight were delivered or loaded on the branch line. When costs were figured on the public subsidy of continued service on the railroad (using a federally-required formula), it was found that each car would require $3,500 in public subsidy. The traffic on the line has declined further since 1975, and costs have risen, according to the state planning study.

RMA intends to offer a suggested conclusion to the abandonment based on retention of necessary tracks.

RMA intends to offer a suggested conclusion to the abandonment based on retention of necessary tracks, preservation of rights of way for public purposes, and insuring that a route for rail service is available for future need, authority planners stated. This strategy will be finally adopted after the community interviews and the preliminary public meeting in Marlinton are completed.

The Authority-Director said he recently learned that the C & O might request a delay of from two to four weeks in the L C C

Early Settlers on the Greenbrier River and its Watershed

By J. T. McAllister,
Hot Springs 1914

In the preparation of some historical work I have been fortunate enough to secure a list of the surveys which were made of lands in this territory, now covered by Pocahontas, Greenbrier and Monroe Counties. Deeming the information of some interest to the readers of your paper, I am enclosing a copy of it, so that if you care to publish it you may do so. Some of the localities referred to in the surveys are not well known to me. I should be glad to have any additional notes which your readers may have which not even known to me. I should be glad to have any additional notes which your readers may have which will throw light on the subject.

Most of these surveys were made early in 1774. If, as was the case in all probability, these parties were then living on these lands it furnishes a very valuable list of men, most if not all of whom must have taken part in the Revolutionary Wars, beginning with the Battle of Point Pleasant.

I have arranged the names by localities so far as it was possible. and they are as follows:
